The Company reports that it is working with engineering and environmental consultants to complete work required before mine construction can start. Design work is underway for a BC Ministry of Transportation and Infrastructure permit to construct a culvert across Fisherman Road. This is a key component of a drainage diversion that is required to be in place. A design for pump works and water retention tanks to protect the drainage channel in case of a flood event is also required.

A water management system for the site is required, comprised of tanks, pumps, and ditches for the mine water and contact water. An engineering report on mine site building foundations and road stability is in progress, with the site visit completed and engineer's report in preparation. Engineered drawings of planned underground excavations are also required to be completed.

These are the main steps to be completed before the mine construction can start. The Company is aiming to break ground for the new underground decline later this year.

The Company would also like to update that Mr. Wesley Warthe-Anderson, a current Director of the Company, has been appointed to the Audit Committee. The current Committee members are Christopher Anderson, Roy Davis, Scott Kent and Wesley Warthe-Anderson.

Dr. Mathew Ball, P.Geo., VP Exploration for Ximen Mining Corp. and a Qualified Person as defined by NI 43-101, approved the technical information contained in this News Release.
