MacPherson said: "In this, our second webinar with WeBull, a leading retail investor platform, I will highlight how our patented air emissions technologies and expanding water treatment platform are addressing critical environmental challenges. With strong momentum in our established air business — including multiple recent license and supply agreements — and a growing presence in the water sector through our innovative solutions, Birchtech is uniquely positioned to provide utilities and industries with sustainable, cost-effective treatment technologies. We look forward to sharing how our approach in clean air and water technologies is creating long-term opportunities for our company, our customers, and our shareholders."

Registration is mandatory for conference participation. For more information, please contact MZ Group at BCHT@mzgroup.us.
